Dun & Company's weekly review of trade to-morrow will say: In spite of war, industrial disputes and other influences tending to impair confidence and retard enterprise, the movement of trade continues large, although below producing capicity, and the recent gradual improvement is maintained. The best feature of the situation is shown not only in the statistics of foreign commerce, but appears also in the reports of specific trades. The situation in iron and steel still is marked by considerable irregularity, and there undoubtedly has been a sharp falling off in the volume of business since August, Orders now being placed, however, are expanding, while the railroads are buying ralls more freely.

Cotton goods mills are working into a belter -position in consequence of the lewer cost of the staple, and value of finished products is downward. This is more noticeable in the primary gray goods. Staple prints are being sold steadily, and miscollaneous export trade promises to be toroader. Colored cottons are generally steady, but bleached and brown domestics are being bought from hand to mouth. There is a small gain in the volume of mills, and the volume of September business as a whole was good, Jobbers are doing a moderate, seasonable trade
